BE ON THE LOOKOUT FOR THE SPOTTED LANTERN FLY

The Bureau of Plant Industry has obtained a new helper in locating the Spotted Lanternfly by the name of Lucky. At 8 weeks, Lucky, an Alberdon Shepherd, was donated to PennVet Working Dog Center to be trained in scent detection, drive building, fitness, agility, obedience and Spotted Lanternfly egg mass detection. She will be a welcomed edition to this endeavor.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is also asking for the public's help in determining where there are large populations of the Spotted Lanternfly and where they can expect to find their egg masses. They have been here for a few years now, and have been eating their way through the commonwealth.

By letting them know where the lanternflies are seen they can also determine the pathways for spreading and determining where the flies would next be found.

At this time of year the Spotted Lanternfly have grown into adults and are beginning to swarm. They will gather on trees and houses for example. The wind helps to spread them as they look for food and places to lay their eggs.

All agricultural businesses working within the quarantine areas, that move between or out of these areas, are required to have an SLF Permit. One can be obtained at slfpermit@pa.gov. It is extremely important that they are not being transported. Sightings can be reported by calling 1.800.422.3359 or online at <https://extension.psu.edu/have-you-seen-a-spotted-lanternfly>.
